Preparing for the Convention-Capacity of the Cincinnati Mo tels—All Above 8,000 Visitor Must Go to Private Houses. every aide, and beyond it no one can get without a ticket every aisle, and beyond it no one can get without a ticket.

Fortunately for everybody, the committee left the matter of tickets solely to W. B. Shattuc, Esq., who, being a railroad man, thoroughly familiar with the subject, has devised a system perfect in itself, and certain to prevent not only crushing, but favoritism. There are four different kinds of tickets namely: Delegation of the perfect in the state of the st consistent Correspondence New York Times.

Having given fairly and fully the political condition of this great State, it remains to say what this great city has done, and is going to do, to insure the comfort of the thousands who will cram it to suffocation next month. First of all, as a matter of most immediate personal interest to these thousands, must be mentioned the gapasity of theority for furnishing the multitude with food and lodging. As to food, there is no limit, of course, for in addition to the hotels, which can alone supply every one, there are numerous restaurants, where excellent meals can be obtained at all hours and at moderate rates. This is enough to say on this point, for it is a bare statement of an undoubted fact, and is sufficient to show that nobody need go hungry who has the money to purchase a meal. But how about the lodging. On this point it must be admitted that if everybody comes here who threatens to come, some among the later-comers who shall not have taken the precaution to engage quarters must skirmish with great tief in the content of his possible to imitate them. The surface are no more tickets for seats than there are no more tickets for seats than there are seats, every one holding one of the more of the seats of the holder, and all all the sufficient to impossible to imitate them. The delegates and others can seat themselves without confusion, and as the money to purchase a meal. But how about the lodging. On this point it must be admitted that if everybody comes here who threatens to come, some among the later-comers who shall not have taken the precaution to engage quarters must skirmish with great to find the later-comers who shall not have taken the precaution to engage quarters must skirmish with great liveliness to find a bed. The hotels of this city, great and small, and of all class, are as follows, and last in the order named: The Grand Hotel, the Gibson House, the Burnet House, the St. Nicholas, the Arlington, the Walnut Street, the St. James, the Henris, the Carlies, Reed's, the Schultz, and the Crawford. The Grand is madest, and claims a bedding capacity of only 890; but by doing as the Continental did at Philadelphia four years ago, it can stor way at least 1,200, and it is sale to assume that it will do it. The Gibson, which is the next first-class house can do as well, and the Burnet nearly as well. It can be said with safety that these three hotels can be at least 3,300. All the others, including the Indiana which was not mentioned, can together do as well as these three, so that the total hotel capacity of the eity can be put down at about 6,000, and it finust be kept in mind that "Henrich" the get Money out of Mrs. Stewart by Pretended Revelations from her Husband. [From aninterview with Judge Hilton is the N. Y. There are perhaps some houses here which will not "double up"— "This is all I care to say upon this sub-ject, for I have another of deeper interest to the public than this proposed law suit. I regard it as one which a great paper like the New York Herald should expose. as hotel-keepers call putting four or five gentlemen into a room that will only dedecently accommodate one—but the only house which has made any declaration to this effect is the St. Nicholas, at the corner of Fourth and Race, which is an expensive hotel on the European plan, and has only twenty rooms. It does not want a mob, and when it has one guest to each of its description. They are all signed A. T. Stewart and when it has one guest to each of its description.

when it has one guest to each of its twenty rooms, its capacity is exhausted until some one of the twenty vacates. But there will be very few of such houses, for the rule will be to crowd in everbody who can by any possibility be accorded that amount of floor space which he would need as a grave. Even then the hotels cannot accommodate half who will be here, and what is to be done with the remainder is a problem which Cincinnati remainder is a problem which Cincinnati has considering. All the steamboats and a signare. Even then the hotels cannot accommodate half, who will be here, and what is to be durational is now considering. All the steamboats which can be made available will be turned into Jodging-houses for the occasion, but they cannot, by say stretch of the imagination, bed more than 100 each, and cannot be more than ten or twelve in number. All public means being thus exhausted, it will be seen that Cincinnatican put 8,000 people to bed, and if 16,000 people come here, as a great many expect, it is not easy to see what is to become of the remainder, unless private citizes take them into their bouses and care for them. Arrangements to this end are now being made by the Committee, which will assent some of the remainder, unless private citizes take them into their bouses and care for them. Arrangements to this end are now being made by the Committee, which will assent seek them into their bouses and care for them. At the Girand Hotel the whole house has been secured by New York, and Indiana have secured rooms, and the following sizes have been secured by New York, and Indiana have secured prooms, and the following sizes have been secured spaced on spartments in Pick's Opera House for their delegates: Michigan, New Jersey, Hode Island, Mississippi, California, Arkansas, Georgia, Massachuestic and West Virgitian. circles of the city. The machine known as the Central Republican Organization has been itching to get hold of the job, and, having failed, is now trying to get credit for what has been admirably done by others. It was the business of the committee, first of all, to raise money with which to prepare the hall, and that was easily done. It is well known by this time that the Convention is to be held in the convention in the leading hotels, and is reached by two or a three lines of horse cars, but their capacity is limited, and the great majority will in find it necessary to walk. The hall is the same in which Greeley was nominated in the latest of the convention of the convention of the convention of the convention of the convention, but the raised seats on the stage is done and in the galleries for 3,000 more, and the convention of the convention, but the raised seats on the stage behind the President, 540 in number, instead of being given to the press, are assigned to, invited guesty. Ome of the most cheering evidences of this is the marked success which attended the two great audition sales of domestic dry goods during the last week. These takes have been widely advertised, it being announced that about 6,000 packages, the products of mills representing a very considerable portion of the mill interest of the Eastern States, would be positively sold to the highest bidder. This announcement brought together the largest assemblage of buyers ever seen in an auction room in this city. They fairly represented the wholesale and retail dry goods interest of the country at large.

The bidding was spirited from the start, At the Tuesday's sale, so great was the demand that nearly twice the number of packages advertised were sold. It had been thought that Thursday's sale might not she successful, coming so soon after the first. If anything it went off with even more success.
